

To the Curious in Mechanism and Musick.

TWO AUTOMATON FIGURES performing different Pieces of Musick on German Flutes, in Concert or Seperately.

These Figures are as Large as Life, being near six Feet high, and most Magnificently habited in the Characters of a SULTAN and SULTANA, dressed in rich Robes, in the TURKISH Fashion, and seated on a Sofa, upon a Grand Throne, covered with Crimson Velvet, and a profusion of other rich Ornaments, and under a most Superb Canopy of Cloth of Gold, formed in the EASTERN Taste, and finished with the greatest Elegance.

The Difficulty in producing Musick from the German Flute is well known, notwithstanding which, the Figures not only blow the Flutes, but expresses the Notes in a very distinct and proper Manner, and graces the Musick with their Fingers, in a pleasing and agreeable Strain, and plays in Unison, or First and Second, in exact Time, so that any Gentleman that plays the Flute, may play in Concert with them.

Likewise AN AUTOMATON FIGURE in Character of a Little Girl, about six Years old, richly dressed in the ENGLISH Fashion, will perform for the amusement of the Curious, several different Aires, upon an Instrument of Musick of a new Construction, imitating Life; by the Motion of her Head, her Arms, and Hands, and the agility and Address, with which she strikes the Strings, will make the Audience suppose her to be alive.

Those who are acquainted with the Mechanic Art, especially Lovers of Extraordinary Curiosities, will undoubtedly be much surpris'd, and will receive great Astonishment at the Sight of the FIGURES, being the nearest Imitations of Life in human Forms, and the most Capital Pieces of Mechanism ever yet performed in this Kingdom before.

To be seen in an Elegant Room, at No. 329, in Oxford-Street, near Swallow-Street, at any Time from Ten in the Morning, till Eight in the Evening.
